Bomb parts found; suspected Unabomber charged

Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. — Investigators found a partially assembled pipe bomb, chemicals and meticulous notes on making explosives in the mountain cabin of the former Berkeley math professor suspected of being the Unabomber, federal officials said Thursday.

Theodore John Kaczynski, 53, was charged Thursday with possessing the bomb components and was held without bail. Appearing bearded and thin before a judge, Kaczynski said he was mentally competent and couldn't afford his own lawyer.

The charge made the Unabomber's long log of bombing attacks, which killed three people and injured 23 in 19 years. Federal officials said the charge was assigned to hold Kaczynski while they build a case. The FBI again searched Kaczynski's handcar on Wednesday. Federal officials said the search could last several days.

Kaczynski is going very slowly because he is not sure if it's booby-trapped," said a federal agent speaking on condition of anonymity. "We have an explosives ordinance team X-raying everything before we touch it."

The cabin has no electricity and no running water, which would appear to explain the Unabomber's aversion to modern society and technology.

Federal agents took Kaczynski into custody Wednesday so they could search his cabin in the wilderness 50 miles northwest of Helena. A key question went unanswered: How could Kaczynski, described by neighbors as going everywhere on a bicycle, have mailed parts from locations including San Francisco, Oakland, Calif., Sacramento, Calif., and Chicago?

Other bombs were left in cities around the country.

Dick Lundberg, a neighbor, said he sometimes gave Kaczynski rides into Helena. Plane connections were available there.

Asked about the possibility of accomplices, one federal agent said: "This guy is a loner. He wouldn't work with someone else."

FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents found a partially completed pipe bomb in the loft at Kaczynski's cabin, according to an affidavit by FBI agent Donald J. Sachtleben.

Ten three-ring binders were recovered filled with "page after page of meticulous writings and sketches which I recognize to be diagrams of explosive devices," Sachtleben said. The diagrams show cross-sections of pipe bombs and electrical circuitry. In addition, agents found galvanized metal, copper and plastic pipes, four of them with copper plates sealing one end, "one of the first steps in the construction of a pipe bomb," Sachtleben said.

Also recovered were potassium chlorate, sodium chlorate, aluminum powder, lead powder and silver oxide powder, all of which can be used in bombs, he added. Three rolled-up pieces of paper appeared to contain "logs of experiments to determine the optimum pipe dimension and combination of explosive materials in various weather conditions," Sachtleben said.

Federal officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said searchers also found two manual typewriters. The Unabomber has sent a sheaf of typed letters over the past few years, and investigators wanted to compare those with the typewriters.

Academic-oriented and obsessed with technology, he fits the FBI psychological profile of the suspect.

By MATT BENNETT
City Editor

The Unabomber's 17-year-long trail of bombs has led federal agents across the United States. Part of the path they have followed goes through the Wilkinson Center and onto the sidewalks of BYU's campus.

Leroy Wood Bearnsen, an associate professor in the Electrical and Computer Engineering Department at BYU, has assumed an involved role in investigating the Unabomber's identity.

According to Bearnsen, sometime around May 1, 1982, a package that had Bearnsen's name and address in the return address corner was left in the "pickup box" at the post office in the Wilkinson Center. When a BYU postal employee discovered the stamps had already been canceled, the package was sent to the downtown Provo post office.

From there, the decision was made to go ahead and send the package anyway.

On May 5, 1982, a secretary at Vanderbilt University, was injured after she opened the package, which contained a pipe bomb. This was the sixth bombing credited to the Unabomber.

"I guess (the package) shouldn't have been sent at all," Bearnsen said. "I believe that bomb was intended for me." Since the incident, Bearnsen has been involved in the investigation to discover the identity of the bomber.

"I've met with the FBI several times. I've told them my life story over and over again," Bearnsen said. "Over the years they have brought me pictures and names — asking me if any of them look or sound familiar. They never have."

When to get in line for conference seats

By STEVE JENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

"How early should we go?" is the question being asked by BYU students planning on braving long lines to get into the Tabernacle at Temple Square this weekend for the 166th Annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Student opinions differ on what time is right to set up camp on the sidewalk outside the Temple Square walls for the four general sessions, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

"We got there at 1 a.m. (last year) but could have just as easily come at 3 a.m.," said Rachna Eav, a sophomore from Bellevue, Wash., studying exercise physiology and medicine.

Eav said very few people got in line between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m., but she didn't regret the longer wait. Surpassing Eav's lengthy wait was Sarah Wilson, a sophomore from Manteca, Calif., majoring in accounting, who arrived at Temple Square at 10 p.m. the night before.

Even though she was near the front of the line, Wilson said the 11-hour wait was somewhat spoiled when people started cutting in line to be with their friends when the gates opened at 7 a.m.

"Here you are at conference, and you would think that people would be fair and honest," Wilson said. "The people cutting in line totally ruined the spirit of the conference."

Sources at LDS Church headquarters had no official recommendation of what time to get in line for conference, but they did make some suggestions.

"Use your own judgment," an LDS Church worker said. "If it's cold and rainy, there are better chances of getting into the Tabernacle without having to wait as long."

Many people wait a long time in line and don't get in, the worker said, but they have the opportunity to stay in line and wait until the next session.

Special conference passes are normally available to visitors from east of the Mississippi River or out of the country.

Tickets are not available to BYU students unless they're from a foreign country, or are in their last semester at BYU and speak no English, the worker said.

"Even those passes don't guarantee them a seat, though," the worker said.

Those who are not fond of lines and crowds can watch conference live on KSL-TV (Channel 5) and tape-delayed on KBYU-TV (Channel 11). In addition, all sessions will be transmitted via satellite to the Varsity Theater in the Wilkinson Center. Only the Saturday evening Priesthood session will be broadcast at the Marriott Center at 6 p.m.

60 Minutes' with Pres. Hinckley to be aired Easter Sunday on CBS

By MEGAN CHRISTOFFERSON
Assistant City Editor

Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who have finally arrived, the long-awaited, much speculated "60 Minutes" interview with church president Gordon B. Hinckley will be broadcast on Easter Sunday.

On the Easter Mike Wallace interview, church members have been on a roller coaster of expectations waiting for the broadcast. Of getting to CBS studios, the interview with the church leader will be on "60 Minutes" Sunday at 6 p.m. barring any unexpected changes.

The segment, which also will include interviews with San Francisco 49er quarterback Steve Young and Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch, originally scheduled to run in February but was delayed without explanation.

KUTV Channel 2 program manager Shelly Storey said they have had several hundred calls since then asking when it will be aired.

"We've had 40 to 50 (calls) a week," Storey said. "I'm glad they've finally decided to run it."

The tone of the interview has also been the cause of much speculation. Many church members fear the church and President Hinckley may be cast in a negative light. Others feel the national exposure will be good for the church's image.

During an LDS institute fireside in January, President Hinckley said, "I hope and pray that he (Mike Wallace) and his associates will be kind to the church and to me."

"I consented to this interview only with the hope that good would come to the church because of it," President Hinckley said.

Friends of Y urged to speed up fundraising efforts

By JANNA NIELSEN

"This is very likely the central most expensive event you have ever attended," said Hyrum Smith, CEO and founder of Franklin Quest at a gala event Thursday night to announce the "Lighting the Way Capital Campaign."

Hundreds of community and church leaders came to the Harris Fine Arts Center Thursday for a night of food, entertainment and fundraising.

Tables of ethnic foods lined the main gallery of the Harris Fine Arts Center as public figures such as Congressman Bill Orton (D-Utah), Relief Society General President Elaine L. Jack and Bishop Richard C. Edgley of the Presiding Bishopric mingled and talked of BYU and the strides it is expected to make in the future.

The capital campaign was founded by former BYU President Rex E. Lee and has been in its silent phase for two years. Thursday, the campaign was made public.

The purpose of the campaign is to raise $250 million in an effort to make BYU and BYU-Hawaii literally "light the way" for millions of young people.

Smith, co-chair of the campaign committee, announced that $140 million had already been secured during the silent phase of the campaign. One hundred million of that is already in the bank.

Alan C. Ashton, past president and chairman of WordPerfect Corporation, and Jack R. Wheatley, a construction and real estate icon, are also co-chairs of the committee.

President Gordon B. Hinckley, president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, addressed the audience after dinner in the de Jong Concert Hall.

He urged the audience to be expedient in their donations throughout the four final years of the campaign.

He said, "the only thing that troubles me about this campaign is that I'm 86 — I don't know if I'll be around then."

President Hinckley said BYU is "worthy of our very best efforts to all who have an interest in it." He called the campaign a "big undertaking but certainly not beyond our capacity to achieve. My confidence is strong in this."

President Hinckley challenged those in attendance to "double our efforts and speed up the process." President Jack was involved with the campaign from the beginning. She said, "I was enthusiastic because there are so many generous people who are willing to give. Plus, I know that what they're raising funds for is really critical."

Clinton signs farm bill despite reservations

WASHINGTON — President Clinton Thursday signed a sweeping farm bill that abandons Depression-era subsidy programs in favor of a system offering guaranteed but gradually declining payments over seven years.

The president said he signed the measure with reservations because it "fails to provide an adequate safety net for family farmers."

"The fixed payments in the bill do not adjust to changes in market conditions, which would leave farmers and the rural communities in which they live vulnerable to reductions in crop prices or yields," the president said.

He said he would submit legislation to Congress next year "to strengthen the farm safety net."

The massive legislation covers a broad range of nutrition, environmental, specific crop and rural development issues.

While eliminating farm subsidies, it also terminates government controls over what farmers can plant or what fields must be left idle.

Judge decides to keep Joe Waldholtz in jail

PITTSBURGH — What happened to the $600,000? Or is it $388,000? Joe Waldholtz, the estranged husband of U.S. Rep. Enid Waldholtz of Utah, doesn't know. He's not even sure how much he actually spent of his grandmother's fortune, which he was entrusted to invest for her.

So a judge decided Thursday not to release Waldholtz from jail until he can figure it out.

"If I were to release Mr. Waldholtz, I believe nothing would happen," said Allegheny County Judge Robert Kelly. "The inducement to get out of jail may speed things up."

Waldholtz, 32, was jailed March 28 after Kelly found him in contempt of court for refusing to account for and return $600,000 he was supposed to have invested for his grandmother. Waldholtz' attorney, Lester Nauhaus, said his client simply doesn't know what he did with the money, which he believes amounted to $386,000 or $388,000.

Petrified fetus found in Brazilian woman

SAO PAULO, Brazil — The 62-year-old widow didn't have the faintest idea what was causing the pain on the right side of her stomach. So she went to the doctor's office, where X-rays revealed quite a surprise — a perfectly formed petrified skeleton of a fetus.

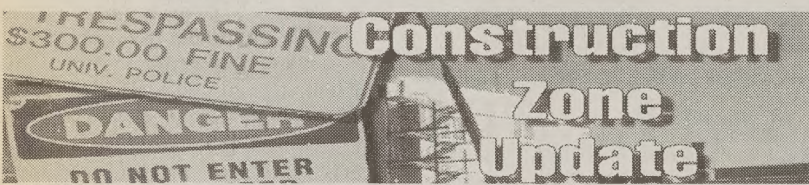

"It is an extremely rare case," said Dr. Jose Remigio Neto, chief obstetrician of the Hospital das Clinicas in the northeastern city of Recife, 1,700 miles from Sao Paulo.

"The fetus has been inside her abdominal cavity, near the intestines, for at least 15 years, which is when she said she last had sexual relations," Remigio Neto said by phone.

"I was shocked when I was told I had been pregnant for so long, because during all this time my belly never swelled," the widow, Antonieta Hilario, told The O Estado de Sao Paulo newspaper Wednesday.

Remigio Neto did not know exactly how old the 20-inch-long fetus was when it died nor its sex. "We should be able to determine these things when we remove the fetus surgically," he said. "It does appear, however, that the baby was about to be born when it died inside its mother's body."

No date has been set for surgery, Remigio Neto said.

Demolition on the first floor of the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center continues to rattle the building in preparation for the renovation and relocation of the Barber Shop, post office and custodial services.

The Stepdown Lounge is in the demolition stage and is expected to be filled in with cement next week.

With the completion of roofing and wall panels on the J. Reuben Clark Law Building, intense interior work is under way.

Student Life is sponsoring a renovation activity, "Best of Concerts Impromptu," today at 9 p.m. in the ELWC East Ballroom. Students can showcase their talents, ranging from singing and comedy acts to theater and baton twirling.

Y student victim of sex crime

By CAMERON ALDER
Universe Staff Writer

The Provo and BYU campus police are teaming up in search of a man suspected of sexually assaulting a 21-year-old female BYU student who was on her way to campus early Thursday morning.

The female was apparently walking to campus at 5:45 a.m. when she caught a glimpse of a male riding a bicycle behind her, said Provo police detective Alan Kucher.

"The male grabbed her from behind and demanded certain things from her and threatened that he had a knife," Kucher said. The male then forced her into the parking lot adjacent to the U.S. Forest Service Shrub Lab, at 735 N. 500 East.

Kucher said the male grabbed the girl in the groin over her clothing and forced her to perform oral sex on him.

After the incident, the male fled eastbound on his bicycle, and the female student returned to her home where she called the Provo police, Kucher said.

The suspect is described as a thin white male in his 20s, approximately 5-feet-7-inches possibly with a mustache and dark, short, curly hair. He was wearing a black stocking cap with black jeans and possibly a dark blue or black shirt.

"This is the first time something like this has happened in the 18 years I've been here," said BYU campus police Lt. Brian Andreason. "Sexual assaults are very sporadic. The best way to avoid a problem is to find a walking partner when you are traveling early or late and stick to well-lit areas."

Andreason encouraged all BYU students to become familiar with the emergency phone locations and take time to read instructions on their use.

"The students can really help us out if they act as our eyes and ears," Andreason said.

BOMB from page 1

Bearnson said that as recently as last week, he was approached by the FBI. "Just last week they showed me pictures of some supposed suspects. The one they arrested yesterday was in that array of pictures that he showed me," Bearnson said an FBI agent called him Wednesday morning saying they had a search warrant for a suspect.

Bearnson is just one of several people who have helped in the search for the Unabomber at BYU.

In the spring of 1995, Larry J. Ostler, librarian in the Harold B. Lee Library, was subpoenaed by the FBI to search library records.

"So far as I can tell, no, the information I gathered for the FBI wasn't helpful (in discovering the identity of the Unabomber)," Ostler said. "But, then again, I'm only guessing. I think we were helpful in giving them the information they needed."

Brian J. Andreason of the University

Police was assigned to a "task group" that met in Salt Lake City with various other agencies to try to piece the puzzle together.

Andreason's general counsel came from an attorney at BYU. English professor Don H. recently analyzed the Unabomber manifesto. "Don Norton, knowledge, was not with the FBI was looking at sentence structure word patterns in the Unabomber manifesto," said Carri Jenkins, assistant director of BYU Communications. "We've all had strict gag orders. By court order can't say what any of the (sub) are for."

Jenkins said, "We've been working with the FBI. At this point checked different spellings (Theodore J. Kaczynski's) name five alias names, and from our files he was never a student or an employee at BYU."

'Take chances,' Vidmar advises

By NOELLE BARKER
Universe Staff Writer

Former U.S. Olympic gymnast and member of the LDS Church, Peter Vidmar was the guest speaker and performer at Thursday's Forum on the Paradigms in Excellence lecture series presented by BYUSA. Vidmar's presentation he focused on gymnastics and the criteria which separate average athletes from world-class champions. In addition to describing the criteria (risk, originality and virtuosity) used in judging, Vidmar gave students and faculty real examples by performing demonstrations on his specialty apparatuses, the pommel horse.

Vidmar's speech, he also applied the values he learned as a gymnast to everyday life.

"Taking chances involves making mistakes," Vidmar said.

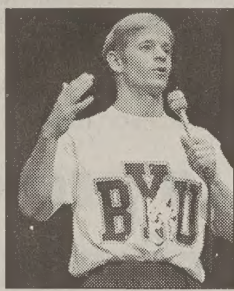

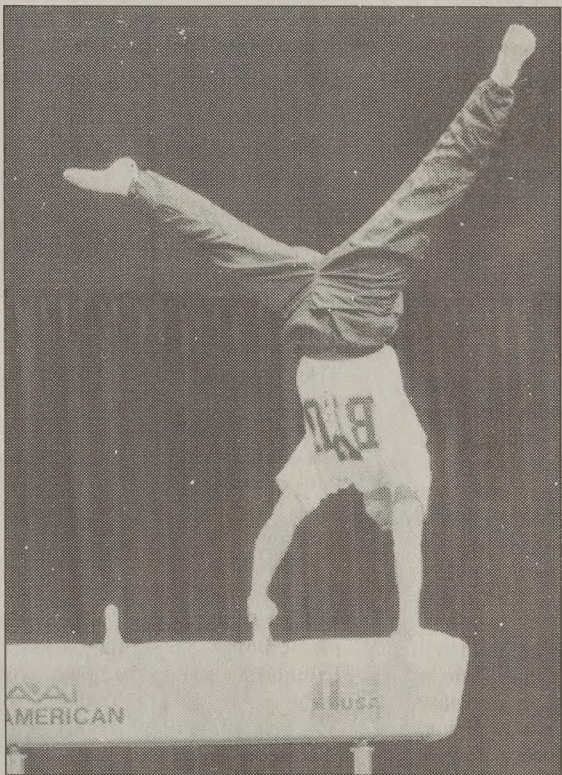

"If I do the big crazy skills over and over again, the law of averages says I will eventually get it right. I'm going to do it all off," he said.

"If it's OK to make mistakes, it's OK to fail so long as we learn from our mistakes. Yet these learning experiences are sometimes very painful experiences."

Vidmar continued to speak about his failures and successes in international competitions. His most significant gymnastic success occurred in 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, Calif., where he won three Olympic medals, two gold and one silver.

Vidmar retired from competition after the Olympics but has continued to perform for the last 12 years.

"I wanted to end my career on a high note," Vidmar said. "We were going down, having a family and I wanted to make sure that I had the time to give to my children. I pretty much did all I could do given my ability ... I thought it would be a good time to bow out."

Vidmar and his wife, Donna, former captain of the UCLA women's gymnastics team, who Vidmar baptized as a member of the LDS Church, had been married for one year before he competed in the Olympics. They have five children who are all active participants in various sports.

BYU's current men's gymnastics coach Mako Sakamoto, who also competed on the Olympic U.S. men's gymnastics team in 1964, was Vidmar's coach for 12 years.

"He had a sparkle in his eye and I could tell that there was something special about him. He had an incredible work ethic and would always bounce back," Sakamoto said.

Audience members included some of the BYU men's gymnastics team. One of the team members, Sam Fisher, a sophomore from Chicago, Ill., majoring in chemical engineering, felt Vidmar's presentation had been inspiring.

"With the way he related some of his experiences, you could put yourself in his position and experience what he felt. He motivates you to improve on your own personal performance."

Workshop offered for entrepreneurs

By EMILY SANDERSON
Assistant Campus Editor

The Entrepreneur Workshops for Students, held today at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. in the Tanner Building, will feature students from the Marriott School of Management who have creative ideas on how to start their own businesses.

The workshops are sponsored by the Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs, an on-campus club for students. The club, which is relatively new, has increased from 35 students last year to 66 now, said Daniel Schenk, the club's co-president.

"There are a lot of students who own their own businesses and pay their way through school," he said. "There are a lot of students we don't even know about."

Schenk said he estimates that between 400 to 500 students who are interested in either starting their own businesses or who already have will attend the conference today.

President Bateman will begin the conference at 8 a.m. with a 30 minute speech. He is scheduled to bring two distinguished guests: Alan Ashton, founder of WordPerfect, and Hyrum Smith, owner of Franklin Quest. Both are world-renowned entrepreneurs who began their businesses in this community.

Three finalists in an entrepreneur competition will give speeches during the conference.

Schenk praised the entrepreneur program at BYU, saying that it was ranked in the top 25 programs at business schools throughout the country in the September 1995 issue of the Success magazine, which is published on the Internet.

DRUMS: Panoramic Steel will perform along with the Percussion Ensemble tonight for an evening of percussion music.

BYU groups to present percussion performance

By ELIZABETH SUMMERHAYS
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's Percussion Ensemble and Panoramic Steel, under the direction of Ronald Brough, will present a feast for the eyes and the ears tonight at 7:30 in the Madsen Recital Hall.

"Due to the diversity of the percussion instruments, the performance will provide audience members with a visual as well as an aural feast," Brough said.

Percussion Ensemble will perform a re-orchestration of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony complete with xylophone, marimba, glockenspiel, vibes, guiro, claves, tom-toms, anvils and other percussion instruments.

"You will still hear the melody and harmony, only a xylophone will play the violin part," Brough said. "They are the same notes, but different instruments — it is unique."

The ensemble will also perform "Stubernic."

"Stubernic" is a piece that explores literally every tonal possibility on a single marimba. Three people simultaneously play the marimba on the frame, the resonators and the bars,"

Brough said.

Other pieces performed by Percussion Ensemble will include "Mudra," an exploration into East Indian rhythms, and "Paddlochia," a piece featuring the paddle drums.

"Paddle drums are drum heads connected to racket-style handles similar to what one would find on a racquetball or tennis courts," Brough said. "There are also rubber balls. It is very visual to say the least."

A sextet from Panoramic Steel will then proceed with "Mo'Pan," one of the tunes on the group's new release, "Planet Pan." Today is its release day.

"Panoramic Steel members play 55 gallon oil drums that have a unique melodic sound," Brough said. "On each pan, there can be up to thirty notes, everything from a bass to a soprano."

The entire Panoramic Steel band will play "Green Ballet," a new piece by Jazz composer Vince Mendoza. An all-time favorite "Maple Leaf Rag" by Scott Joplin, will lead into the final number, "Musical Volcano."

Tickets are $4 for students and $6 general. For ticket information call 378-4322.

Redeemer recording makes radio debut

Universe Services

A new recording and the first commercial release of "The Redeemer: A Sacred Service of Music" by Latter-day Saint composer Robert Cundick will be broadcast on KBYU-FM (89.1 and 89.5) Sunday at 7 p.m.

This acclaimed choral and orchestral work was captured in a live performance last January by the BYU Singers, Concert Choir and Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Ronald Staheli. Soloists include Clayne Robison, Barry Bounous, Stephanie Buckley, Paul Busselberg, Veronica Hanson and Kaarin Safsten.

The recording was produced by Mark Sheldon of Minnesota Public Radio with Jon Holloman as recording engineer.

The work in its entirety was also broadcast Thursday evening on Minnesota Public Radio to about 12 regional stations. Sheldon, a BYU graduate, gave an introduction to the piece to the Minnesota listeners including some discussion of the LDS Church and BYU.

Performed by both LDS and non-LDS groups since its premiere in the spring of 1978, "The Redeemer" has been praised as a masterpiece of LDS composition.

Cundick, who served for 26 years as a Tabernacle Organist at Temple Square in Salt Lake City, said, "Every time this piece is performed a special magic happens that I'm quite unprepared for. It has a profound effect on listeners from all backgrounds and lifestyles."

With a text chosen and adapted from the four LDS standard works by Ralph Woodward, chair of the choral division at BYU, "The Redeemer" is a worshipful tribute to the life and mission of Jesus Christ that is especially appropriate during the Easter season.

But, said director Staheli, "The Redeemer" has a message applicable at any time or season. "The beautiful sounds are as fresh now as they were 18 years ago when the work was first performed," he said.

BYU play 'conquers' with humor

By KEVIN ELZEY
Universe Staff Writer

Written in 1773, Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" is an enjoyable farce depicting the follies of the upper class of his day.

The strength of the show was in the principal actors with the widely experienced cast carrying the show.

Jean Jenkins, Faculty Emeritus at BYU, was commanding in her portrayal of the domineering mother, Mrs. Hardcastle.

Her counterpart, Mr. Hardcastle, was played by Chris H. Brower from Springville. Brower, who has worked as a drama teacher in the Provo School District for 20 years, was loud and boisterous in his role.

The levels of the relationship between Kate Hardcastle and Marlow are surprising. Kate, played by Stephanie Foster Breinholt, "stoops" and pretends to be a bar maid so that the shy Marlow, played by J. Benjamin Hoppe, will be bold in his courting of her.

Other notable principles included Joel Bishop and Katie Foster. In a mistaken-identity farce such as this, time to establish the plot and to establish where the misunderstandings might occur was expected. During this time building the story-line there were many enjoyable moments. Unfortunately there were also designed by Louella Powell added to the extreme portrayal of upper class society of the time. The costume of Mrs. Hardcastle was especially humorous with an outlandish dress that has a panier, a large hoop skirt which accentuated the hips, much wider than she is tall.

"She Stoops to Conquer" runs through April 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pardoe Drama Theatre. Tickets are $6 for students, faculty, and staff; $7 for senior citizens and alumni; $8 for general public.

Softball team wins on clutch hit

By SCOTT APGAR
Universe Sports Writer

Rain may have postponed Tuesday's game between the BYU women's softball team and cross-town rival Wolverines, but it did not avert defeat for UVSC as they lost to BYU 3-2 in Wednesday's make-up game.

Cougar sophomore Dani Anderson demonstrated her pitching prowess as she struck out nine opposing batters in the first four innings without giving up any walks.

Anderson finished the game with 11 strikeouts. "Dani deserves most of the credit for the game," assistant coach Darren Draper said.

Another Cougar highlight was Erin Ellsworth's game-winning hit with two outs in the bottom of the seventh and final inning.

With two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning, infielder Sarah Roberts stole second base, which put her in scoring position.

Ellsworth stepped to the plate with a chance to drive in the winning run.

"I knew I had to get a hit to bring in Sarah from second to win the game," Ellsworth said.

Ellsworth said she didn't remember much about her triple. She said she knew it went into the outfield but that she was too busy running to pay attention to where it went. "I didn't see it; I just ran," Ellsworth said.

Coach Tammy Horning attributes the team's improvement this semester to hard work in practice and new team chemistry.

Last semester, the team didn't win a game. This semester, the team has a 14-3 record.

Horning also said the team is very young, and having had time to practice and play together has helped the players mature and become more confident in their ability to win.

The team will host Snow College today at 4:30 p.m. in a doubleheader. Though BYU beat Snow at the St. George and Snow College tournaments earlier this year, Horning isn't complacent about the game.

"We can't look past them by any means," Horning said.

Horning said Snow has several players who handle the bat well and run fast. She said BYU has to keep the Snow speedsters off the bases.

"When they get on base, they steal left and right," she said.

Novice fencers get a chance to show their foils

By CHAD HOOPES
Universe Sports Writer

BYU's fencing team will host one of the largest fencing tournaments of the semester this weekend. The BYU Novice fencing tournament will take place Saturday in rooms 138 and 144 of the RB.

"It is usually the biggest event of the semester," fencing coach Terri White said. "Spectators will be able to see a lot of fencing."

White expects that 70 men and 30 women will fence.

The tournament will give beginning fencers an opportunity to hone their fencing skills.

"The BYU Novice is designed for fencers of 1 year or less experience," White said. "The fencers will mainly be people perfecting their basic fencing skills."

Fencers from Weber State, Ricks, Utah Valley State College and BYU will participate in the tournament. Registration begins at 6 a.m. for anyone who wants to compete in the tournament.

First round action for men will begin at 7 a.m. and preliminary rounds for women will start after general conference at 12 p.m. Both rounds will be completed before general conference sessions begin.

Elimination rounds will take place at the conclusion of conference.

The tournament will be judged by the members of the BYU fencing team.

BYU's playoff hopes ride on matches with Waves

By MATT MOLEN
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's volleyball team can take one step closer to the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation Tournament by sweeping Pepperdine in California on Friday and Saturday.

BYU, which is currently ranked 13th in the nation, and Pepperdine are tied for fourth place in the league's Mountain Pacific Division, and only the top three teams advance to post-season play.

"We're two games out of third place," BYU head coach Carl McGown said. "We have four matches to go, and we probably need to win three."

BYU split with fourth-ranked Cal State Northridge last weekend and will be at full strength for the matches against the Wave. Freshman middle blocker Ryan Millar, who sprained an ankle in Friday's match against CSN, is expected to return for the Cougars. Millar leads the nation in blocking average.

BYU is led by freshman sensation Oswald Antonetti, who had 38 kills last weekend against the Matadors, and will look to freshman Ingo Lindemann for some defense. Lindemann had 25 digs and 33 kills in the split with CSN.

McGown said he was pleased with his young team's improvement.

"We're still improving," McGown said. "There are times when we play very well."

After facing Pepperdine this weekend, the Cougars return home to play their final home matches on April 12 and 13 against sixth-ranked UC Santa Barbara.

Increasing evidence of Bosnia massacre

Associated Press

SAHINICI, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.N. investigators on Thursday stacked up rows of blindfolds on a muddy hillside, powerful evidence that beneath them lay the victims of an ethnic massacre.

The dozens of blindfolds, strips of cloth mostly in dark colors, support survivors' accounts that up to 7,000 men were slaughtered by the Bosnian Serbs who overran the Muslim enclave of Srebrenica last summer.

In Bosnia's first spring thaw in peace after four years of war, investigators are spreading out in pursuit of human remains and other physical evidence to back up such accounts. What they find will be used by the war crimes tribunal in the Netherlands to prosecute those responsible.

Other mass graves dot Bosnia — Bosnian Serbs have excavated more than 100 bodies near the western town of Mrkonjic Grad since Saturday. The Serbs say the victims apparently were killed by Croats.

But Srebrenica appears to be the site of the worst massacre of the war, and the fields around it have come to symbolize the horror of Bosnia's ordeal.

Survivors say that after July's fall of Srebrenica, Bosnian Serb fighters loaded the men into trucks and brought them to a school gymnasium near Sahinici, 35 miles southeast of Srebrenica.

At the school, survivors say, the men were ordered to remove their hats and coats, then were blindfolded. They were then taken to two fields and shot. Their bodies were buried in mass graves.

The blindfolds found Thursday are believed to be unused ones taken from the school to be disposed of in the fields where the bodies were buried.

The six investigators recovered the blindfolds and clothing from brush off a hillside road. Digging into one of the fields with trowels and spades, they found more clothing and some bones.

They gathered the evidence in plastic wrap. One man carrying a bone photographed some of the remains, and talked into a tape recorder to describe them.

The investigators sorted the blindfolds and stacked them in about 10 neat rows to take inventory. Because they roped off the area, it was impossible to get close enough to say exactly how many there were, but it appeared there were between five and 10 in each row.

The war crimes tribunal has indicted the Bosnian Serbs' highest leaders, Radovan Karadzic and Gen. Ratko Mladic, for their alleged roles in the Srebrenica massacre. Two Bosnian Serb soldiers who are suspected of taking part have been extradited from Serbia to the tribunal.

Investigators search for cause of Brown's crash

Associated Press

DUBROVNIK, Croatia — Investigators turned Thursday to unraveling the final minutes of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's flight and the reason it crashed near this Dalmatian port, killing all 35 people aboard.

Defense Secretary William Perry said initial speculation focused on faulty instrumentation. But many questions remained a day after the jet clipped a barren hill in a raging rain-storm and crashed about two miles short of Dubrovnik's Cilipi Airport.

Why was the plane off course? Why did rescue efforts erroneously focus at first on the waters of the Adriatic Sea? Could Croatian, NATO and U.S. rescuers have reached the site any faster?

Even the number of victims was uncertain until more than 24 hours after the crash.

Initial reports from Washington said 33 people were on board, but the State Department listed 35 victims Thursday — all Americans except for one Bosnian and a Croat.

"In travel in this part of the world, and in these conditions, you don't always get a good (passenger) manifest," the U.S. Ambassador to Croatia, Peter Galbraith, told a news conference.

Brown, accompanied by Commerce Department staff members and business executives, left the Bosnian city of Tuzla on Wednesday afternoon for what should have been a short 130-mile flight south to the Croatian coast.

In Tuzla, he had visited U.S. soldiers serving with the Bosnian peace mission, passing out fast food and sports videos. He was to have visited the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo and the Croatian capital of Zagreb on the trip.

Officials in both capitals had eagerly anticipated Brown's visit for the possible U.S. investment it could bring to their war-battered economies.

"I am not sure we can overcome the loss of Mr. Brown," said Bosnian Prime Minister Hasan Muratovic, who had been expecting to meet the commerce secretary Thursday in Sarajevo.

Instead, U.S. investigators were arriving to try to determine what caused the T-43, the U.S. military version of a Boeing 737, to crash into the hill, known locally as Sveti Ivan, or Saint John.

Provo housing rated as unaffordable

By PAUL WALKER
Universe Staff Writer

Provo is ninth on the list of the least affordable places to live in the United States, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

Provo had a rating of 37.5 in the final quarter of 1995, meaning that a family earning the Utah median income of $40,400 could afford to buy just 37.5 percent of the homes sold. Salt Lake City ranks twenty-third with a rating of 47.9.

Clark Johnston, an agent for Wardley Realty in Provo, said most homes sold in Provo range from $90,000 to $130,000. He said even though Provo is such an unaffordable market, it doesn't affect business because there are so many out-of-town buyers.

"The problem is that the market has increased much faster than people's income," said Brad Eldredge, a broker for Atherton Mortgage. "This trend is requiring more two-income families."

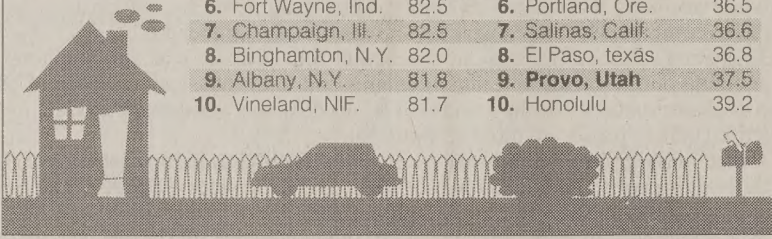

But even two-income families are having a difficult time buying a house.

Recently two families attending BYU who had dual incomes of $2,000 a month and no debt barely qualified for a $90,000 home, which is near the bottom of the market in

Housing market pricey in Provo

Provo's housing market ranks as the ninth least affordable in the U.S. based on the percentage of homes sold that were within reach of the median income household at the prevailing mortgage interest rate.

Provo, Eldredge said.

Eldredge said his own house, a moderate $110,000 home three years ago, is now selling for $160,000. A condominium selling for $45,000 three years ago is now worth $95,000. This price increase is not proportional to the increases in the income of Provo residents.

A family needs to have a yearly income of around $36,000 and minimal debt to be able to qualify for a typical home in Provo, priced from $90,000 to $130,000, Eldredge said.

In addition, rental rates in Provo have probably doubled in the last five years, said John Pace, manager of the Off-Campus Housing Office at BYU. Pace estimated that a $250 furnished apartment in 1991 is now priced at $500.

According to the National Home Builders Association, 18 of the 25 least affordable cities are in the West region. San Francisco is on the top of that list with a 21.4 rating. The Midwest is the most affordable region of the country with Lima, Ohio topping that list with an 86.2 rating.
